

I am concerned about the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law, specifically, any possible FCC action to preempt it with a weaker federal standard. Please leave the Indiana law alone. I just moved to Indiana from Michigan, and greatly appreciate a welcome relief from the telephone interruptions that would bother me 5-10 times a day. It's a total waste of time, for the telemarketer, as well as me, since I make it a policy never to buy any products or services over the phone. The Indiana Law works, please don't interfere with it. Thanks.
the constant telemarketing interruptions I used to receive